

Bid to acquire folding fan c1590-1620

This intricately designed artifact (dated 1590 – 1620) is a rare survivor of a short-lived style which was a popular fashion statement of its time. Today, no other examples can be found of this folding fan dating earlier than the 17th century. Fans with a striking similarity to this appeared in two portraits of Queen Elizabeth I.

Image

Embroidered folding fan acquired by the Fan Museum

Nation/region

London

Grant awarded

£12,500

Award date

25/02/2015

Related News

The Fan Museum Trust acquires a unique embroidered folding fan

No other examples of this type of fan – that is to say a folding fan with sticks joined at the pivot end with a cord or ribbon – are thought to have survived.