

Acquisition of a Portrait of General Wolfe, circa 1760

Portrait of General James Wolfe by JSC Schaak circa 1760. General Wolfe was one of Britain's most celebrated military heroes of the eighteenth century, and this portrait is viewed as the most important of him in the country.

Image

Painting of General Wolfe by JSC Schaak

Nation/region

London

Grant awarded

£80,000

Award date

11/02/2008

Related News

National Army Museum close to saving General Wolfe

The National Army Museum's Wolfe appeal has received its biggest grant to date - from the National Heritage Memorial Fund (NHMF).